I Am Puzzled How to Get a Reply Back to Katherine Miller.

"Quite characteristic of her! Her morals are true to type!" I remarked to Jimmy-boy when I handed Katherine Miller's letter to him an hour later. After he had read it, Jim helped me compose a reply. We told Miss Miller that the party headed for the Lorimer mine was really hunting for her; we promised we would send a courier to tell Morrison where she was held; we made the letter as brief as possible and put it in French, knowing she could read it. If our answer went astray, it wouldn't be of much value to any Mexican who might chance to find it.

We hired a messenger to follow the search-party and sent him off on the evening train carrying a note which was also done in our best French.

Then Jim promised to watch me from a distance, the next afternoon when I was due to deliver a note to Katherine's Indian messenger.

Early next morning, Jim took me out to the field where he parks his bus. The mechanics were dandy chaps. While indifferent to the thrills of the game, they appeared to approve of a girl with nerve enough to want to be a pilot.

What I really had, I suppose, was the nerve of a fool. I hadn't the least notion of what I was letting myself in for. Some women have made airplane records, and told myself that I might just as well be numbered among the pioneers, though as I peered into the blue above me, I didn't care much about making an altitude record.

"By the time I'm a grandmother, women will have their own cozy airplanes—sedan style—to do errands and make calls in. Why wait? Better go to it now," thought I to myself. The ship may have been a steady old taxi, as Jim insisted, but it didn't feel so to me. The mechanics had installed a telephone connection between the instructor and pupil. By means of it, Jim explained how he did things. That was enough for a first lesson, he said. He showed me how to hold the joy-stick—let me "hold her steady" for a few minutes. But a "bump" in the air frightened me out of my senses. To quiet me, Jim "sat around on the clouds" for a while.

vy from the drippings in the pan. Make the stuffing of the bread, melted butter and salt and pepper and a little water if necessary. Mix thoroughly.

GRAPE PUDDING.

2 cups grape juice.
1-3 cup corn starch.
2 tablespoons butter.
2 eggs.
1-4 cup sugar.
2 cups milk.
1-8 teaspoon salt.
1-2 level spoonful flour.
1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

If the grape juice is unsweetened add 1-2 cup sugar. Dilute corn starch with enough cold grape juice to pour easily. Heat grape juice and when boiling stir cornstarch and butter and a few grains of salt. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture is transparent. Separate whites and yolks of eggs and beat whites till stiff and dry. Fold into the grape juice mixture. Pour into individual molds and chill. Serve with custard sauce.

CUSTARD SAUCE.

Mix egg yolks, sugar and salt. Scald milk and slowly add to egg mixture. Return to double boiler and cook, stirring constantly, until it coats the spoon. When cool add vanilla.

Sister Mary's Kitchen

I find that if I have some definite plan of attack formulated for my day's work things get done a whole lot easier.

Hard and fast rules for doing a given task at a given time on a given day make for a routine that is rather steady and uncomfortable to all members of a family.

For instance, I do like to wash on Monday, but if for some reason, it's not convenient, there's no great harm done and no time need be wasted. On Monday I can accomplish some of the little odd jobs that have been crying to be done for days.

In planning a day's work the preparation of the meals is the first consideration. If I'm going to have to spend a lot of time baking and cooking I do not plan to do much but the usual dusting and straightening.

Days that are set aside for cleaning are days of simple dinners.

The working out of a plan for the logical succession of tasks will mean a saving of time and strength to every housekeeper.

Menu for Tomorrow.

BREAKFAST—Grape fruit, griddle cakes, syrup, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Scrambled eggs with rice, brown bread and butter, marmalade, tea.

DINNER—Rolled flank of beef, mashed potatoes, baked squash, endive with French dressing, bread and butter, grape pudding, coffee.

My Own Recipes.

Endive is in the city markets during the year, but during January, February and March, and April the supply is imported. Endive belongs to the chervil family and was a native of Asia but has been naturalized into the United States. It is a valuable salad plant for fall use.

SCRAMBLED EGGS WITH RICE.

3 eggs.
1-3 cup cooked rice.
34 cup milk.
1 teaspoonful salt.

1-4 teaspoon pepper.
2 tablespoons butter.
Mix milk and rice thoroughly. Melt butter in a frying pan. Turn rice and milk into pan and when hot add eggs unbeaten. Stir mixture with a fork while it is cooking. Add salt and pepper. Cook until of creamy consistency.

ROLLED FLANK OF BEEF.

1 flank steak.
Suet.
1-4 cup carrot cubes.
1 cup boiling water.
1 small onion.

1-4 cup celery (diced)
1 cup soft bread.
2 teaspoons melted butter.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
1-3 teaspoon pepper.

Trim edges of meat, sprinkle with salt and pepper, spread with stuffing. Roll and tie. Arrange vegetables in a roaster and put meat roll on them. Chop suet and put on top meat. Pour the boiling water in the pan, cover and put in a hot oven. Roast covered for 20 minutes, then uncover and cook 30 minutes longer. Make a gra-
